The Golden Rules of Points

1

Be a Free Agent

Airline and hotel loyalty is dead, so don't spend your money chasing elite status. Instead, spend on cards that earn transferable points and book with whoever offers the best deals for each trip.

2

Earn and Burn

Points are a terrible investment that lose 20%+ of their value each year. Stop hoarding your points and book that trip!

3

Cashback Is Not King

Put the right charges on the right cards to earn 2-5 points per dollar, which is far more valuable than cashback when used correctly.

4

Chase the Deal, Not the Destination

The more flexible you are with destinations, dates, routing, and airlines, the better your chances are of booking epic deals.

5

Transfer, and Don't Cash Out

Stop settling for bad value in your bank's travel portal. First find points availability with airlines and hotels, and then transfer your points to the right loyalty programs to book directly.

6

Cash for Business, Points for Fun

Pay cash for business travel to get the tax write-off. Then, use the points you earn toward luxury vacations.

Book a no-cost 20 min. points strategy call with our founder Elliot Rosenberg to see how many $10,000s we can save you.
